

Winter in the Bahamas Perfect Weather and No Hurricanes

Just like any travel destination, the Bahamas has its own busy-season and off-season. The Bahamas, however, are unique because the temperatures, from summer to winter, only vary about 10 degrees; and your Rooms101.com vacation, whether it's just a romantic Bahamas Get-Away or one of the many all-inclusive packages (check with your Rooms101.com Travel Specialist to decide which is best for you) can be enjoyable year-round.

While weather is moderate year-round, as in most tropical destinations, there is a rainy season. Fortunately, if you are traveling at this time of year, the rainy season happens to be in the summer. Right now the days are only a little bit cooler, and a lot drier, than in the summer. Also normally this time of year most other travel packages tend to be more expensive, but not with Rooms101.com.

Now is also the end of the hurricane season, so travel time now is ideal for balmy weather and lots to do and see. Be sure and take advantage of the exquisite dining experiences with your all-inclusive packages; the food is superb!

A mixture of home cooked food, well prepared international dishes as well as traditional cuisine are found all over the island. While the local food tends to be spicier and involves plenty of seafood, there is also a nice blend of international cuisine available. Some of the more popular foods are rock lobster or boiled fish (with grits), as well as the native staple, conch (an ocean mollusk with white meat).

For more information about vacations to the Bahamas, visit
<http://rooms101.com/category/bahamas/>