

Charleston, SC Rich in Traditional Holiday Performances

At the Charleston Music Hall, 37 John Street, beginning December 5th, is the performance of the Charleston Christmas Special. It runs for nine performances through December 19th. The Music Hall is located in the Upper King Street area of Historic Downtown Charleston and is an outstanding venue for the arts and entertainment. It happens to be next door to three nationally acclaimed restaurants and three public parking garages within two blocks.

Renowned for its jazz and orchestral presentations, the Christmas Special will not disappoint. The show is a well-received, annual event and is brand new for this season. It brings a Broadway experience to Charleston with a spectacular musical variety show that the whole family will enjoy. It is known as the lowcountry's longest running holiday show, seen by thousands each year.

You can expect everything from Groucho Marx to Marilyn Monroe, and The Dance of the Toy Soldiers to lively tap dancing. The show is produced by Brad and Jennifer Morantz who have directed and choreographed productions of Little Shop of Horrors, Singin' In The Rain, Annie, Guys and Dolls, I Do I Do, The Unsinkable Molly Brown and many, many more.

And on the 12th of December, the Charleston Ballet Theatre presents its annual production of Tchaikovsky's The Nutcracker, a collaboration conceived and directed by Robert Joffrey.
