

Myrtle Beach and their Christmas Extravaganzas

Everybody's having a Christmas show in Myrtle Beach. There are a large number of live-music theatres, with lots of seating, and beginning the week of December 5th; many of them are presenting musical Christmas shows that will run through the month. Some theatres are already presenting theirs. The Alabama Theatre is having their annual Christmas Show, which was voted the Most Outstanding Christmas Show in Myrtle Beach. Their showings have already begun and run through January 2nd. This year's Christmas production brings an incredible combination of talent and special effects for a spectacular holiday musical experience sure to put you in the spirit.

This year's Christmas Show promises to impress and surpass all expectations. As theatre President Bob Wood states, "We are confident you will leave the theatre with a great sense of family and the true meaning of Christmas. The show will combine traditional classics with contemporary holiday favorites. Its appeal touches everyone." The South's Grandest Christmas Show is a southern family tradition during the holidays."

The Christmas Show will continue nightly and offer select matinees.

And at the Palace Theatre, The Twelve Irish Tenors is presenting their Christmas Show, Christmastime! Direct from their sold out World Tour, The Twelve Irish Tenors return to Myrtle Beach, SC for an ultimate Christmas spectacular! Featured celebrity guests include Michael W. Smith, Sandi Patty, Debbie Reynolds and Roy Clark! The Palace Theatre Holiday show will run from now through January 2, 2010.
